

Flowchart of finding largest number in array.

by: Laura Triana

The largest number in a list of numbers is found by comparing each number with the current largest number. The largest number is initialised to zero and each number in the list is checked. If the current number is greater than the current largest number, the largest number is updated. Finally, the largest number found is printed.

